fog that lay over the rivers and bay this

About 6.30 o'clock this morning a About 8.30 o'clock this morning a collision occurred between two ferry-bots of the Hamilton avenue ferry at the slip in Brooklyn, which caused considerable of a panic, but fortunately oid not result in any sprious amount of samage. The collision was caused by the Pierpont running into the Whitehall, of the same line.

The officials of the Company as usual, were very reticent about the affair, but from a passenger on board the Whitehall the tollowing account of the collision was obtained:

"Suddenly we heard the shrick of a whistle dead ahead, and the next moment the outlines of a ferry-boat were discerned simost upon us. There was a mad rush of the passengers on our boat for the stern, "The bells on the other boat, which proved to be the Pierpont, could be heard signalling 'astern at full speed," but she was upon us before she could get on sternway.

way to the city."

The Whitehall was crowded with passengers, but the Pierpont had only a few on board.

sengers, but the Pierpont had only a few on board.

The Staten Island ferry-boat Robert Garret; was in collision with an unknown schooner midway between the Battery and Governor's Island, shortly after 6 o'clock this morning. The Garrett left St. Georga at 5:20 o'clock, and came up with the schooner near Governor's island. She stanted on her return trip at 6 o'clock, and when half way to Governor's island, in the middle of the channel, her pilot heard a horn very close by. The fog was very thick and the boat was going under reduced speed. The sounding of the horn indicated that the schooner was under way, and the Garlett's pilot acted accordingly. Instead of this the schooner was anchored. rettis pilot acted accordingly. Instead of this the schooner was anchored. The Garrett struck her a glancing blow. The stanchions supporting the hurricane deck of the Garrett on the guarter were torn away and part of the guarter were torn away and part of the guarter were but few passengers on board. For a few moments the excitement among them was intense. One will be supported to the first preservers. The crew quieted them with assurances that there was no danger, and the boat proceeded on her try.

Supt. Gannon said to an "Evening World" reporter that the fault rested altrely with the schooner. She should have sounded a horn while at anchor, specified to this, she had no right to anchor the middle of the channel. He said that the damage to the Garrett was comparatively small and would probably not becessitate her laying off for repairs.

The idea of suicide, which was at first entertained, was not borne out when, upon examination, it was found that the window in the room was open.

Max Ellenbogen and Grogan were taken to the Flower Hospital. They are severely burned about the head and hands, but will recover.

However, she continued her caprices, and this morning she broke out of her waiting stall and took a mad run about the large inclosure within the hospital grounds. She leaped over railings, tore hrough the tennis grounds sweeping away posts and nets, and when old Tom Flynn rushed out to catch her she jumped over his head. She was at last caught and subdued, but the hospital drivers and stable men regard her as a crazy terror.
